Carmi Man Dies of Burns in Oil Field Fire Near Eldorado

Two Others are Injured; Loss Set at $150,000

Fire is Caused
By Igniting Gas from Old Seagraves Mine

Three oilfield workers were injured, one fatally, in a spectacular fire in the oil fields north of Eldorado Saturday afternoon.

Wayne W. Hayden, 23, Carmi, died in the Ferrell hospital at Eldorado Sunday at 6:20 a. m. of burns. Also admitted to the hospital Saturday afternoon were Chris Majors of Henderson, Ky., and Kenneth Pollard, Carmi. Their injuries were not considered serious.

An oil rig, owned by the J. D. Turner drilling firm of Evansville, Ind., was destroyed and the loss is estimated at $150,000.

The fire, which started at 2:15 Saturday afternoon, apparently was caused by a spark from the drilling equipment igniting escaping gas.

The rig was at the Cook-Spear No. 4 drilling site, in the oil field north of Eldorado, about a half mile east of the old Seagraves mine.

Walter Duncan was the operator and the drilling was being accomplished by the Big Seven Drilling Co., reported to be owned by the J. D. Turner Co., Evansville.

"Bud" Cannon, in charge of all Duncan operations in this area, stated Saturday afternoon it wasn't definitely known what started the fire, "but it must have been started by escaping gas being ignited."

"We knew we were drilling through old mine entries and there was danger from escaping gas, but this entire area," and he waved his hand to take in many acres of ground in all directions, "we are told is undermined and there is no way to keep from drilling into the entries."

Continuing, Cannon stated "this is modern drilling equipment, with all safety devices and we were taking all precautions. Mud was being pumped into the hole as we drilled and that should have smothered out any fire. The men had been warned of the dangers and were checking cigarettes and matches as they came on the job. It's just one of those things that can't be explained."

Drilling at the operation started Thursday and the fire broke out at 2:15 p. m. The rig was at a depth of 43 feet when the fire broke out.

Charles Rogers of Merrin, with the Department of Mines and Minerals, State of Illinois, stated he was on his way to inspect the operation, but stopped about a quarter mile away to talk with another operator and while talking they heard an explosion and the fire was burning brightly by the time he could turn his head in the direction of the sound.

About 4:30 Saturday afternoon it was possible to salvage a part of the equipment. The mud pump and some drill pipe were pulled away from the fire, but the fire continued to rage around the rig and it toppled over around 7 o'clock at night. The fire is still burning as gas continues to escape from the hole.

This was the second big fire in the north Eldorado oil field. Feb. 14 a fire broke out at the site of the W. W. Blankenship No. 1, being drilled for John Stelle Associates by B. L. Rucker Drilling Co. No one was injured in the fire, with the loss of equipment estimated at $140,000.

Funeral services for Mr. Hayden will be conducted Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Evangelical church, Carmi, with Rev. C. R. Bitter officiating. Burial will be in the Kuykendall cemetery, near Carmi.

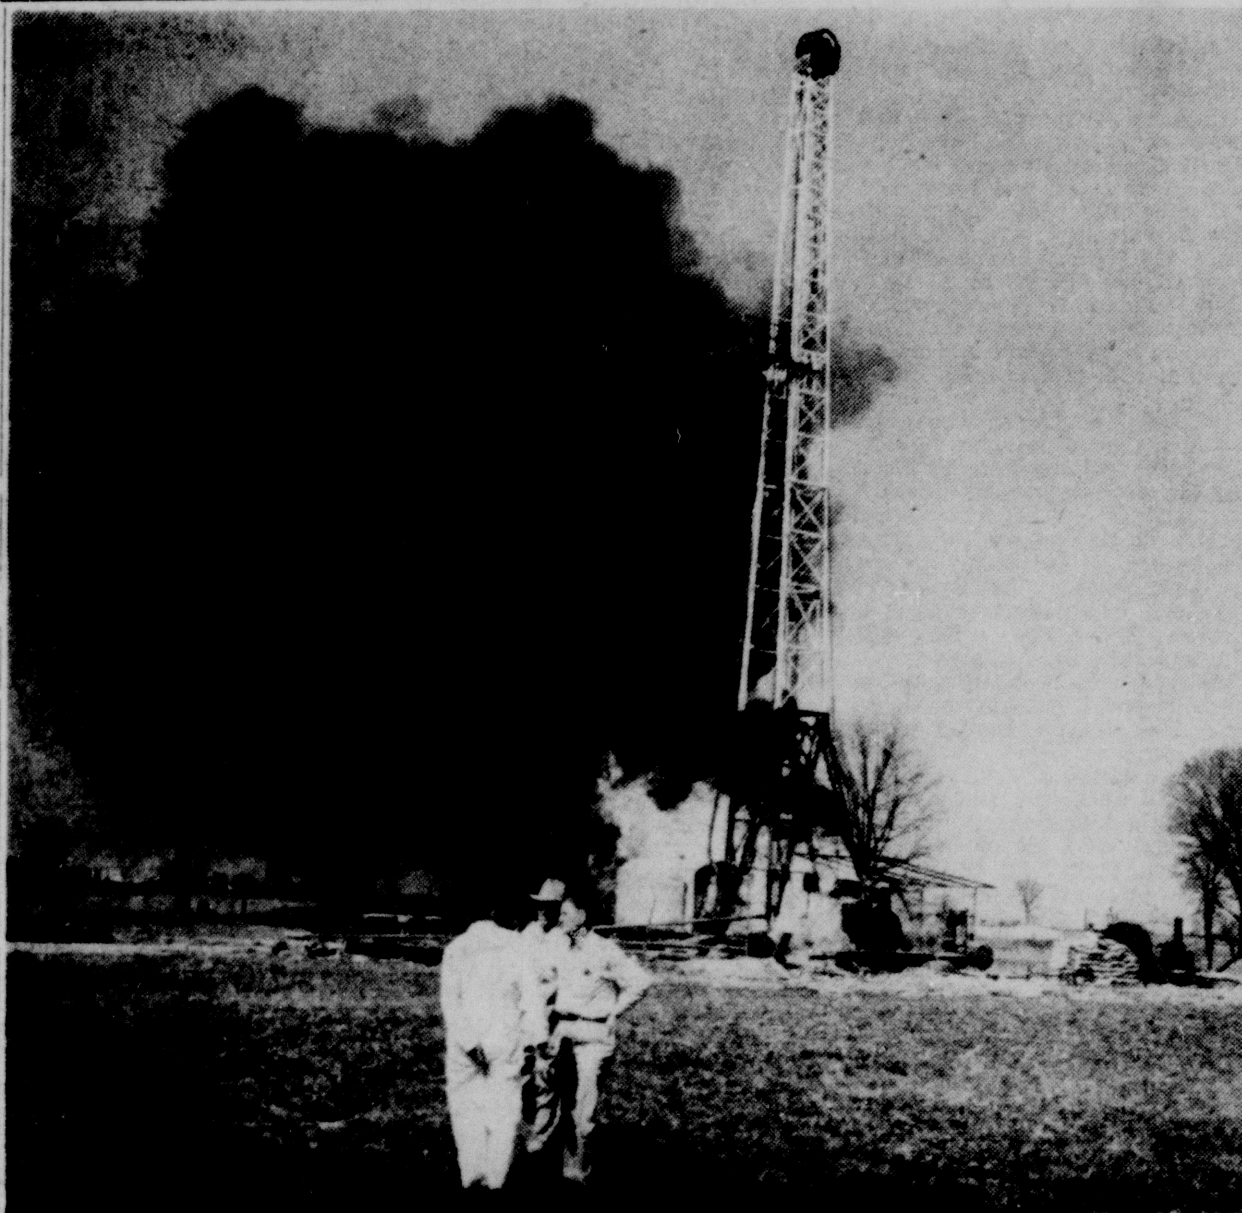

He is survived by his wife, Madeline, a son, Michael Wayne, 20 months of age, his mother, Mrs. Nora Duval of Carmi, and a brother, Bobby, Carmi.

The body was taken from the Kittinger funeral home, Carmi, to the home of his mother this afternoon, to lie in state until the funeral hour.

He was a veteran of the Korean war and a member of the Carmi post, American Legion.

City, Village Elections Tuesday In State; Many Special Issues

By United Press

Illinois' last round of 1955 city and village elections will be held Tuesday.

Many cities and villages will elect officers and will vote on scores of special issues.

Among municipalities holding elections or referendums are Decatur, Champaign, Joliet, Elgin.

Chou Adopts 'Soft' Policy at Bandung Parley

BANDUNG, Indonesia (U.P.) — Premier Chou En-lai of Communist China passed up a chance today to use the forum of the 29-nation Afro-Asian conference for propaganda purposes. It appeared he had turned to a "soft line" to win support for Peiping.

The conference opened with speeches by President Sukarno and Foreign Minister Ali Sastroamidjojo of Indonesia. It adopted a broad, five-point conference agenda and then reversed itself on an earlier ruling and decided to let delegation chiefs speak.

Free Viet Nam distributed an appeal to the nations attending the conference to help its people in the north flee the Communists' "dictatorial regime."

Chou ignored Viet Nam's charges that Red China had interfered in Indochina and turned down his opportunity to speak before the assembled delegates when his nation's turn came on the alphabetical order of speaking arrangements.

Diplomatic sources had speculated before the conference began he might try to win support for his policies by impeccable behavior. Today he was all smiles. One of the first speakers was Prince Sihanouk Norodom, former king of Cambodia. He said the search of the African and Asian peoples for world peace "shatters the frontiers" between the Communist and non-Communist worlds.

He strongly defended the neutral policies of Burma and India and appealed to the great powers to respect the independence, integrity, security and traditions and political ideologies of his country and other small nations.

Decatur voters have witnessed a hot-and-cold campaign for mayor between incumbent City Finance Commissioner Don F. Davis and former County Treasurer Clarence A. Sablotny. Decatur also will elect four city commissioners and police magistrate, as will other commission-form cities naming a mayor.

Three Issues at Paris

At Champaign, interest is focused on a referendum on the question of adopting a city manager form of government. Lined up for city manager government is the "Better Champaign committee." Against city manager form is a "Committee for Representative Government."

About 13 cities and villages in Illinois have adopted city manager form government. Joliet, a city which has city manager form government, will elect a mayor and six councilmen; while at Elgin, backers of city manager form were trying to make it an issue in the race for mayor and commissioner posts.

Paris had three special issues on the ballot—daylight savings time; a $350,000 revenue bond issue for broad, five-point conference agenda and then reversed itself on an earlier ruling and decided to let delegation chiefs speak.

Urges Action to Prevent Vaccine Black Market

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Sen. Lister Hill (D-Ala.) called on President Eisenhower today to take emergency action to remove public fears of a black market in the Salk polio vaccine.

Hill asked the President to call on manufacturers to keep the new discovery out of the normal commercial channels for one week so a system of priorities can be set up. Shipments for the school inoculation program and for emergency cases would not be affected.

Hill, chairman of the Senate Labor and Welfare Committee, also suggested that a White House conference on the vaccine, beginning Friday, continue in session until it has worked out a voluntary system of priorities and controls.

In addition, he said he would "be happy to receive any recommendations" for providing federal funds "to make certain that every child needing the vaccine will get it." He apparently referred to a recent statement by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis that it will be able to provide free only the first two of the three necessary inoculations.

Hill made the recommendations in a letter to Mr. Eisenhower.

The Alabama Democrat also suggested that Mr. Eisenhower enlarge the White House conference to include Dr. Jonas E. Salk, Dr. Thomas Francis Jr. and Dr. Alan Gregg, scientists who developed and tested the vaccine.

Hill explained that he was disturbed by news reports that 90 shipments of the vaccine had arrived in the Baltimore-Washington area for distribution through commercial channels while shipments for the school inoculation program are being delayed.

Mrs. Guy Beauman Dies Near Tunnel Hill

Mrs. Guy Beauman, 77, widely known orchard owner in Johnson county, who became critically ill with a heart ailment Wednesday night, died Sunday at 3 p. m. at the home of her son, William Beauman, near Tunnel Hill.

She was an active member of the Methodist church of Vienna, the Johnson County Home Bureau and the Vienna Woman's club, in which she served as Garden chairman for several years.

Truman Urges Use of UN in Peace Threats

Former President
Appears Before
Senate Committee

WASHINGTON (U.P.) — Former President Truman today called on the United States to bring "the current threats to world peace" before the United Nations General Assembly.

Mr. Truman, in his first appearance as a congressional witness since he left the Senate more than 10 years ago, did not mention the Formosa crisis by name in a prepared statement.

But he told a Senate Foreign Relations subcommittee that the U. N. should be used in order to make the world organization work.

"Wherever we can, we should use it," Mr. Truman said. "And we should use it now by bringing before the General Assembly the current threats to world peace."

"The Best Instrument" Departing from his prepared statement, Mr. Truman said that "we should also use the U. N. as a means for pressing on with our hopes and aspirations for disarmament."

"Every human being in the world today lives in the shadow of atomic warfare which could destroy civilization as we know it, and, quite possibly, corrupt the blood stream of the human race," he said.

"The United Nations is the best instrument mankind has for holding this terrible situation before the conscience of the world and for demanding action to reduce the danger," he added.

In many ways, he said, the U. N. General Assembly can be a more effective instrument for peace than the Security Council, where Russia can use the veto power. He pointed out the U. N. action in Korea as an example. He said the veto has not made the U. N. "powerless to keep the peace."

"Whatever its weakness and difficulties, the United Nations is a power to be reckoned with, and no aggressor can afford to ignore it," he said.

Urges Caution on Changes However, he urged the United States to go slow in demanding revisions of the U. N. charter lest the good provisions be damaged.

Chipper and smiling, Mr. Truman received a rousing ovation as he returned to the big marble-walled Senate caucus room where he first gained national fame as chairman of the Truman war investigating subcommittee. He recalled that he had not been in the room since the summer of 1944, when he resigned to run for vice president.

T-Sgt. Bill Bradley, 46, Dies; Husband of Former Shawneetown Woman

T Sgt. Bill Bradley, 46, husband of the former Miss Bertha Sanders of Shawneetown, died in the Air Base hospital in Scott Field Saturday afternoon.

Following a brief funeral service held at 2 p. m. today at the Gardner funeral home in Belleville, the body is being returned to Shawneetown and is expected to arrive around 6 p. m. It will lie in state at the home of his father-in-law, Judge W. S. Sanders.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. at Cottonwood Cumberland Presbyterian church. Rev. Perry Williams will officiate, and burial will be in the Union Ridge cemetery.

He labored for 40 years to find the master key that might explain the physical makeup and operation of the universe. He believed the universe was one continuous field, like an endless stream, and governed by unchangeable laws.

Clashed With Red Hunters A stubborn free thinker, he clashed often and bitterly with congressional Communist hunters. He once advised a witness not to cooperate with Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy in a Senate subcommittee hearing into Communist espionage.

Dr. Albert Einstein, World Famed Physicist and Mathematical Genius, Dies

L. W. Riley, 61,
Well Known
Contractor, Dies

PRINCETON, N. J. (U.P.) — Dr. Albert Einstein, 76, one of the greatest physicists of all time, died today at Princeton hospital.

The frail little cosmic genius, whose theory of relativity unlocked the door to the atomic age, died quietly at 1:15 a. m. Six physicians, including three specialists from New York, were at his side. Dr. P. Guy Dean, Einstein's physician, listed the cause of death as "inflammation of the gall bladder."

Einstein entered the hospital secretly last Friday. News of his death was withheld for nearly seven hours. Miss M. Hall, director of nurses at Princeton Hospital, said Einstein's family "held up the announcement."

"Death came suddenly," a spokesman said. "He was conscious to the end."

Einstein's death set the world of science and education into deep mourning.

Brooded about A Bomb Dr. Harold W. Dodds, president of Princeton University, described Einstein's contribution to man's understanding of nature as "beyond assessment in our day."

"We are deeply saddened at his passing," he said.

On his 75th birthday last year, Einstein was hailed in London as the man "who has done more than anyone in this century to change the perspective of science itself."

It was in 1939 when the rumpled little man with the shock of unkempt white hair put President Franklin D. Roosevelt on the track of the atomic bomb. Einstein said it could be built, but he firmly believed it should be held as a threat to dictators and not dropped on enemy cities.

Later, after the wartime disasters at Hiroshima and Nagasaki, Einstein brooded aloud. He said the unleashing of the atom "has changed everything except our modes of thinking, and thus we drift toward unparalleled catastrophe."

Rose From Obscurity

Einstein rose from obscurity as a German factory-owner's son, and a childhood marked by a slowness to learn, and astounded the 20th Century with his genius.

His mathematical theories changed the course of scientific thinking. His theory of relativity—showing time was relative to height, length and breadth—first brought him popular notice.

He labored for 40 years to find the master key that might explain the physical makeup and operation of the universe. He believed the universe was one continuous field, like an endless stream, and governed by unchangeable laws.

His latest efforts were devoted to refinements on his latest theory on the interactions of cosmic forces, first published in 1953.

Surviving are his wife, Helen, a son, Jimmy, 14, and three children. The body of the girl was taken to the home of a sister, Mrs. H. M. (Loretta) Case, in New Shawneetown this morning. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wenzel.

Palbearers will be H. E. Mitchell Jr., Victor Mitchell, Thorai Gaskins, Bill Epperheimer, O. L. Turner Jr. and John Towle.

L. W. Riley

L. W. Riley, well known contractor who resided at 119 South Jackson, died last night at 11:45 in the Harrisburg hospital at the age of 61. He was taken to the hospital yesterday at 11 a. m. Death was due to cancer from which he had suffered more than a year.

Mr. Riley was born Nov. 2, 1893, to J. W. and Retha Riley in Dix, Ill., north of Mt. Vernon. He had previously made his home in Carbondale before moving to Harrisburg in 1940, the year in which he married Helen Potts.

Before entering the construction business ten years ago he was for 15 years salesman for the Fabrick Tractor Co.

He was a 32nd degree Mason, a member of the Rotary and Elks clubs and was the first president of the Egyptian Shrine club. He also served as secretary of the Shriners until he was forced to resign due to his health. Mr. Riley was largely instrumental in securing the Shrine circus as an attraction in Harrisburg. He was also a director of the Saline County Fair association.

Surviving are his wife, Helen, a son, Jimmy, 14, and three children. The body of the girl was taken to the home of a sister, Mrs. H. M. (Loretta) Case, in New Shawneetown this morning. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wenzel.

Carrier Mills Woman Is Injured in Fall from Automobile

A Carrier Mills woman fell out of an automobile at 10 a. m. Sunday, breaking her right arm and her left wrist, State Policeman Adolph Sweat reported.

Taken to Lighthouse hospital was Mabel Travis, 65, who fell out of the car when the door came open.

Sweat said that J. C. Gobin and Lawrence Brockett of Eldorado had started out to find a person in the Dykersburg area in Williamson county and that the woman went with them to show them where the person lived. As Gobin made a left turn into the driveway the door came open and she fell out.

'Bromo' Johns Critically Hurt Early Sunday

Betty Jo Wenzel,
23, Dies After Car
Hits Tree, Pole

Betty Jo Wenzel, 23, of Shawneetown was killed and Bronzel "Bromo" Johns of Harrisburg was injured critically early yesterday in an auto crash on Route 13 two and a half miles west of Harrisburg.

State Policeman Adolph Sweat said that the crash occurred at 5:50 a. m. Sunday when the auto, travelling west, ran off the right side of the road, then veered across the highway and overturned, first hitting a tree, then a telephone pole.

The top of the car hit the tree as the machine overturned. Sweat said, with the automobile breaking into two parts. The front part continued on into the telephone pole, breaking it off.

Johns told officers that he went to sleep at the wheel.

Both were taken by ambulance to the Lighthouse hospital, where Miss Wenzel, employed by the Atomic Energy commission at Paducah, Ky., died at 8 a. m. Coroner Elmer G. Gibbons reported. She suffered a fractured skull, fractures of both arms and internal injuries. Coroner Gibbons had not set a date for the inquest.

The condition of Johns, well-known local young man who had been employed at the AEC plant at Paducah until several weeks ago, was termed critical. Reports were that his spinal cord was severed and that he was paralyzed from his waist down.

Sweat said the time of the crash was determined by Norman Jones, awakened by the crash at 5:50 a. m. He lived about a quarter of a mile from where the tragedy occurred.

The couple was found by Jim Edwards, local constable, who was returning home from his work at a coal mine. Both had been thrown out of the car.

Miss Wenzel's body was moved to the Smith and Edwards funeral home in Ridgway. Hundreds of persons yesterday viewed the wrecked car at the Mitchell service station. It was pulled there in two sections by the Mitchell wrecker. The car, a 1953 Cadillac, belonged to the Hamm Motor Co.

The body of the girl was taken to the home of a sister, Mrs. H. M. (Loretta) Case, in New Shawneetown this morning. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wenzel.

Miss Wenzel is also survived by five other sisters and four brothers. They are as follows:

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY
A proud look, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood. — Proverbs 17:15.

A proud look seems relatively a very minor sin, but it has ruined the careers of some able men. Humility and consideration can be cultivated and should be. If we loved our neighbor as ourselves we would not offend with haughty attitudes.

Wanted: Moral Discipline

Editorial By Bruce Blossat
The spectacular, well-planned theft of a record $350,000 in cash from a small New York City bank is much more than just a piece of local news. It highlights a growing national problem.

The FBI reports that 307 banks were robbed in 1954. In the last eight months, there were 386. The upward trend is so disturbing that the FBI has begun a series of conferences with local police officials and bank representatives in search of a way to check these lootings.

According to the FBI, apprehending bank robbers today is a lot tougher than it used to be in the days of John Dillinger. Then the bank gangs had a sort of continuing organization. Now the jobs are done by quickly organized bands of criminals who pull off a robbery or two and then split up. This makes them harder to identify and trace.

Of course, it isn't only the bank robbery that is on the rise. Many types of crime are increasing, not merely numerically but in proportion to the nation's population. The increase includes both crimes against people and crimes against property.

We can find at least a partial explanation for the rise in violence against people in the mounting tensions of our over-crowded city. In our many broken homes, in the shattering of disciplines that follows from the American habit of moving from place to place and job to job.

We seem to give somewhat less thought to crimes against property. Yet in their present proportions they are distinctly a mark of modern civilization. Murder and assault were surprisingly common in the distant past. Thievery really came into its own with this age of relative plenty.

Undoubtedly the criminologists and other specialists can offer some pretty good reasons. These might be among them:

This is a money civilization. Money increasingly is the key to filling our wants. Less and less do we produce the things we personally need; we buy them. Since this is so, the competition for the dollar grows stiffer all the time.

Perhaps inevitably, some men of weaker fiber decide that they will not trouble to earn the money they want but simply take it. As it grows harder to build and maintain good moral disciplines, this attitude becomes more common.

This is also the age of supreme temptation. Never in history have we seen so many shiny, desirable things about us as now. Motor cars, TV sets, cameras, smartly turned out household gadgets, a hundred and one fancy props for good living.

The urge to possess is strong, especially among younger people who haven't acquired a sense of values, who don't see why they should wait to have what they want. Young men look eagerly in dazzling shop windows, or stand on street corners and enviously watch the Cadillacs go by.

In other words, ours is a time when people's wants have been vastly multiplied, but they do not make what they want. Money unlocks the door. If they will not or cannot earn it, then they may choose to steal either the material things they seek, or the money to buy them.

We need more and better policemen to halt the mounting toll of thievery. But we also need a deeper solution. We must find a way to build and preserve moral disciplines strong enough to overcome the strains and temptations of this age of money and material plenty.

Un-Military Ike

When President Eisenhower was running for his present office in 1952, some sincere men and some not so sincere raised fears about having a "military man in the White House."

The answer, from those who knew him best, was that he was a very "un-military" general in the sense that he had a deep dedication to peace and a broad, statesmanlike appreciation of the problems of international affairs.

Now here he is, proving it, combating his own top military men on the matter of appropriations, seeking to temper the more militant views of some. Any critic who says he leans toward war will probably be laughed at. He desires to be.

The Rats Start Sniffing

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says:
Two Bachelors Run The House Of Representatives; Sam Rayburn Is Wedded To Congress; Oldest Congressman In Point Of Service Hasn't Changed Through The Years.

(Editors Note — Today Drew Pearson presents the Brass Ring, good for one free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, to Sam Rayburn, Speaker of the House of Representatives.)

WASHINGTON. — A member of the Women's Press Club was eying the two men who rule the unruly House of Representatives as they sat on the Speaker's dais at a press club dinner the other day.

"He travels fastest who travels alone," she remarked. "It's a sad commentary on us women that both Sam Rayburn and Joe Martin are bachelors."

Sam Rayburn has been single so long that most people don't know he was once married. But about forty years ago when the present speaker of the House of Representatives was in his thirties and a very green congressman, he brought a new bride to Washington. They remained married five months. Then she confided that she had made a mistake, that she had been in love with another man. Sam was heartbroken, but let her go back to Texas to the man she loved.

Since then, Sam Rayburn has had only one love—the Congress of the United States. He loves it, is married to it, has served it longer than any other man save Senator Hayden of Arizona. Not even his old friend and sometimes speaker, Joe Martin, with whom he exchanges gavel with the Republicans come into power, has Sam's record.

HE KNOWS CONGRESS

He knows every barber in the House, knows the different gavel with which he has called the House to order — when Queen Elizabeth spoke, when MacArthur spoke, the president of France, the president of Turkey, the king of Greece. He knows almost every block of worn white and black marble between his office and the speaker's rostrum. And on his shelves are copies of the laws he has enacted and the debates which enacted them.

It's a long array of laws, affecting almost every person in the United States—the Securities and Exchange Acts, the Federal Communications Act, Rural Electrification, Holding Corporation — for Sam was sponsor of most of the early New Deal legislation.

Sam is proud of his record, but he doesn't brag about it.

"I was named Sam, not Samuel," he says. "We don't believe in putting on airs in our family."

"Sam is the only man I know," Harry Truman once remarked, "who could stay in Washington 40 years and still wear the same size hat he wore when he came here."

A SQUARE JAW

It's now been 42 years since Sam Rayburn came to Washington, fresh from being speaker of the Texas legislature. Woodrow Wilson had just been elected. World War I had not yet started. Sam has stayed on — through the administration of six presidents, two world wars and the Korean war.

After Adlai Stevenson was defeated in 1952, Sam was discouraged and talked about quitting. He's long wanted to go back to his farm near Bonham where he tinkers around the barn with a hammer and saw, cuts wood in the fall, and plays a domino game called "42" in the cool of the evening.

But his brother-in-law, Judge Marvin Jones, cheered him up and Sam has been leading the Democrats in Congress more effectively ever since.

Outwardly Sam Rayburn is friendly and soft-spoken. But his jaw is square and hot blood flows in his veins. Born in Tennessee and reared in Texas, Sam can and will fight stubbornly, relentlessly. Though from a conservative rural district, he has fought for a wage-hour law for labor and against the Taft-Hartley act just as much as he has fought for farmers, or against the power trust.

ADVICE TO TRUMAN

He started the Eisenhower administration by trying to help the new president.

"I told him what I told Harry Truman," he confided to a friend. "I went to see Truman and told him: 'Now you ain't gonna be Harry to me anymore. You are Mr. President. But as an old friend who has known you a long time I'm gonna give you some advice. You ain't as big a man as some people think you are.'"

"To this Truman replied: 'I sure ain't.'"

"When I told this to Eisenhower he leaped back and roared."

"Then I told Truman," Sam said, continuing his advice to Eisenhower, "that he was going to have two great problems — one with the people around you who

Red China Builds Up Air Power, Dulles Reports

AUGUSTA, Ga. — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles told President Eisenhower Sunday that Red China has launched an intensive buildup of offensive air power opposite Formosa which has "grave implications" for the United States.

Dulles, who visited President Eisenhower at his vacation retreat here, said this country only learns of the Communist air activities in the "last few days" but they had been going on for several weeks.

Most congressional leaders refused to comment immediately on Dulles' disclosures but Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-S.D.) said the buildup was "not surprising" and "as Mr. Dulles pointed out, it doesn't mean that an attack is imminent."

Dulles, who returned to Washington after a two-hour conference with the President, said that Red building with "a considerable intensification and considerably broader in scope than anything that was known until recently."

He and the President discussed the "grave implications" surrounding the buildup, Dulles said, but he refused to say whether attacks on the off-shore islands of Quemoy and Matsu or on the Nationalist stronghold of Formosa might be forthcoming. The secretary of state went on to say, however, that the increased airpower foreshadows a greater capability for attack "than we had been aware of a few weeks ago."

Take the Key and See...

the New PACKARD with Torsion-Level Ride

Smooths the Road ...Levels the Load

Automatically

Here's comfort you've dreamed of... a ride to set you dreaming! It's the new Packard Torsion-Level Ride—a new system of suspension eliminating conventional coil and leaf springs to give you comfort unequalled by any car, on any road.

In other cars, twisting forces due to wheel shocks are transmitted to the frame. You submit to the resulting pitch and bounce... the car is subjected to wracking of frame and body. But with Packard Torsion-Level Suspension, these same twisting forces are transmitted along the new torsion bar system, and absorbed before they can reach either frame or passengers. And an ingenious power-controlled levelizer automatically compensates for changes in passenger and luggage load.

All this is yours plus the tremendous power of the new "free-breathing" V-8 engine developing 275 horsepower in the Caribbean and 260 in all other models. Plus, too, the smooth response of the new Packard Twin Ultramatic—actually two transmissions in one. All this in a setting of magnificent luxury and beauty. See and drive this one new car in the fine car field. "Ask the Man Who Owns One."

Hall Denounces Stevenson, Truman Attacks

WASHINGTON (AP)—GOP National Chairman Leonard W. Hall denounced former President Truman and Adlai E. Stevenson Sunday night as "New Deal peashooters" whose criticism of President Eisenhower "will get them nowhere."

Hall charged that Mr. Truman and Stevenson are trying to "tear down" President Eisenhower for partisan political advantage.

Republican legislators, including Styles Bridges (NH) of the Senate GOP Policy committee, also criticized Mr. Truman and Stevenson for attacking the Eisenhower administration at a Saturday night dinner here.

Bridges said the two Democratic party leaders were only looking for "political profit" in next year's presidential race.

Hall did not mention Mr. Truman by name, but he left no doubt as to his targets when he declared that the President's popularity "continues to grow higher and higher and the New Deal peashooters will get nowhere."

Mr. Truman told a testimonial dinner for Speaker Sam Rayburn that the Eisenhower administration has been playing "political tricks" with foreign policy, domestic welfare and the nation's security. He accused the Republicans of "bare-faced political fraud."

Stevenson and Rayburn also jibed at the Republicans. But Rayburn urged both Democrats and Republicans to use restraint in dealing with national security matters.

Anti-Polio Vaccine for 89 Downstate Counties Arrives for Inoculations

SPRINGFIELD — The first Salk vaccine anti-polio mass inoculations of Illinois first and second graders got underway today.

Among communities starting inoculations today were Vandalia, Greenville, Granite City, Belleville, Venice and Madison, the State Health Department reported.

Shipments of the now-proven vaccine by air from Parke, Davis & Co., Detroit, to State Health Department offices in Springfield and Chicago, and to the Chicago Health Department were completed Sunday.

Vaccine allotments for 89 of the downstate counties were shipped to Springfield, and allotments for 13 northeastern Illinois counties went to the State Health Department laboratory at Chicago.

Counties getting their supply from the Chicago shipment were Boone, Cook, De Kalb, Du Page, Grundy, Kane, Kankakee, Kendall, Lake, La Salle, McHenry, Will and Winnebago.

State Health Department employees here manned offices on Sunday and contacted county health authorities and medical societies regarding handling of shipments.

Before the offices closed Sunday night all but 13 counties, plus Sangamon, had either picked up their allotment, of vaccine or it had been mailed out to them.

The 13 counties which had not yet arranged to take their allotments of vaccine were Champaign, Clark, Crawford, Cumberland, De Witt, Fulton, Iroquois, Livingston, Macon, Morgan, Peoria, Piatt, and Shelby. Sangamon county, in which Springfield is located, was keeping its supply in the State Health Department's cooling room until needed.

Directions call for keeping the vaccine stored in 35-50 degree temperatures until it is taken to schools for the inoculations.

Need Parents' Permission

The vaccine for the inoculation of first and second graders was provided free by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The shipments which arrived Sunday contained the amount of vaccine needed to give initial shots to 90 per cent of the more than 400,000 Illinois first and second grade children. The national foundation estimated parents of only 90 per cent of the children would give the necessary permission for the shots. However, reports showed 100 per cent parental permission in many communities.

The Illinois shipment for the second shot in the national foundation's two-shot program was expected to arrive in about a week. Many communities will not start their inoculation programs until next week.

Gov. William G. Stratton this week will ask the Illinois Legislature to appropriate one million dollars to buy vaccine for about 250,000 children. The children who would receive these free shots would be those under 15 from low-income families.

The remainder of the state's estimated 1,800,000 children under 15 — excluding the first and second graders — will have to get Salk shots from their private physicians at private practice fees.

Only a few dozen white people were living in the Idaho territory immense tract of 90,000 square miles, in 1860.

To the Voters of the City of Harrisburg:

Next Tuesday is the city general election. You will elect a Mayor and other city officers to run your city for the next four years. Please bear in mind that Claud Gibbons is the only candidate for Mayor. Mr. Hudson Mugge's name will appear on the ballot, but as you will remember Mr. Mugge withdrew from the race and is not a candidate at all. I therefore ask you one and all to cast your vote for me for Mayor.

Congressman Hits Failure to Send Greetings to Bandung

BANDUNG, Indonesia (P—Rep. Adam Clayton Powell (D-N.Y.) charged today the U. S. administration was guilty of "sheer stupidity" in rejecting his suggestion that President Eisenhower send greetings to the Asian African conference here.

The Negro congressman, here as an unofficial observer and newspaper reporter, said the American omission "was all the more obvious after the Moscow Radio broadcast greetings to the conference today."

"I think this is a colossal error and sheer stupidity and further indicates that we have no Far Eastern policy and do not understand what is happening here at all," Powell said.

While Mr. Eisenhower did not send a personal message, he did direct an appeal through Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to the leaders of the conference to "seek a renunciation of force to achieve national ambitions."

Purchase Property

Mr. and Mrs. Booker Shell, 713 South Granger, have bought the property known as "Lou's Beauty Shop" and residence, at 1230 South Granger, sold to them through Hauptmann Real Estate by Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Long.

M-Sgt. Kenneth Coffeen, son of Mrs. Mary J. Mart in Equality, is among 26,000 soldiers slated to participate in Exercise Apple Jack during May at the Yakima Firing Center, Wash. Apple Jack will test the efficiency of infantry and support units in mountainous and desert terrain. The simulated use of atomic weapons will be one of the conditions of the exercise. Sergeant Coffeen entered the Army in 1937. Before entering the Army, Coffeen attended Kansas State college, Pittsburg.

Meek Proposes Ban On Picketing of Small Businesses

CHICAGO (P)—A plan to halt picketing of small businesses when no real labor dispute is involved was put forth today by Joseph T. Meek, president of the Illinois Federation of Retail Assns.

Meek told a meeting of the Chicago Negro Chamber of Commerce that "all we need is for the Legislature to provide that an injunction can be granted, preventing the racketeer from picketing the small intrastate employee when there is no dispute, no effort at honest, constructive unionization—just tribute."

He said "extortionists" who call themselves union representatives are milking Chicago's smaller employers of "tens of thousands of dollars annually."

The arm sections of slipcovers usually are the first to wear out. To make them last longer, make a protective covering of the same fabric as the slipcover. Hem the arm covers for a neat look. They can be tucked in on the cushion side of the chair, and pinned or basted lightly along the outside.

Traffic Deaths In Area Increase

DU QUOIN, Ill. (P)—State police reported today there were more traffic fatalities in southern Illinois last month than during the first three months of 1954.

State Police District 13 headquarters here said there were 14 highway deaths in 17 southern Illinois counties last month. In contrast, March, 1954, was the first fatality-free month in the district since records have been kept. And there were only 11 fatalities altogether in January, February and March last year.

The March, 1955, southern Illinois traffic death toll included four fatalities in Franklin county, three in Perry county, two in Jackson and one each in Alexander, Jefferson, Johnson, Saline and Union.

Boy Found Hanging On Bathroom Door Hook

HIGHLAND PARK, Ill. (P)—The body of John K. Bingham, 14, was found hanging with a comic book cover, depicting a hanging, propped on a dresser a few feet away.

The boy's father, Albert Young Bingham, discovered the body suspended by a silk scarf from a hook on a bathroom door that adjoined the boy's bedroom.

Lake County Coroner Robert Babcox speculated that the death may have resulted from miscalculation during an experiment to learn the sensations of strangling.

Scientist Finds Bugs' Achilles Heel; Likes to Kill 'Em Through Their Feet

DR. FRANK STARK: Science may be helping the superbugs.

By WARD CANNEL
NEA Staff Correspondent
STAMFORD, Conn. (NEA)—Dr. Frank Stark is a calculating man, a dangerous man, a killer.

He was polishing his eyeglasses with a large white handkerchief. He was saying: "I like to kill them through the feet."

Along with 25 calculating, dangerous colleagues here, Dr. Stark is out to kill off the pests that destroy food, shelter and clothing and spread disease at an annual cost to Americans of $4,000,000,000.

In many cases, the quarry Dr. Stark stalks are almost too small to see. But in their mass attacks on the food supplies of this country, they yearly eat enough to feed 10,000,000 people. There are mites, moths, bugs, worms, aphids, hoppers, beetles, loopers, crawlers, rollers and spiders.

There is also the kitchen variety of housefly.

It is against pestilences such as these that Dr. Stark—and others like him—are battling. And while it is good for humanity, it is also a highly profitable investment for the companies that finance the research.

The laboratory here in Stamford is owned by American Cyanamid. They want results: a pesticide that will kill the enemy. They also want profits: a pesticide that will be relatively easy and cheap to make. The market in pesticides is competitive with many large chemical companies offering their wares to the consumer.

By far the largest consumer of these chemicals is the farmer. His produce, livestock, milk and crops are measured by the ton and bushel. He will buy insecticides by the hundred-pound quantity. He will be offered the first crack at new chemicals.

It is the homeowner, staggering through the house with his fly-swatter poised, who gets the dregs of chemical research.

"He's just not a big enough market," Dr. Stark said. "After the farmer and dairyman have been taken care of, then maybe the pesticide can be marketed to the homeowner."

The job of finding an inexpensive but effectively toxic chemical is not the most efficient job in the world. Research starts off with random tests—any compound, common or exotic—on representative pests.

The scientists are looking for materials that will kill the bug but not the animals, plants or humans who are being attacked. At the same time, the chemical must be able to be combined with other agents. It will have to be used as a dust, spray, liquid, flake. And at the same time, the chemical will have to kill several kinds of pests to be most economical.

It took Dr. Stark's Agriculture Chemicals laboratory 4049 long and controlled tests to come up with their latest pesticide—Malathion. And then sample quantities had to be sent to State and Federal laboratories for extensive tests before it could be marketed.

The government had to know: was it toxic to other things besides the pests; was it compatible with other compounds; could it be packed and shipped safely.

Most important, however, were the analytical tests that had to be devised by Dr. Stark's men to detect Malathion—even in minute quantities—wherever it might show up. If a milk cow becomes sick, could it be the new pesticide? There must be a test to find out.

In the end, it cost American Cyanamid about $1 million to produce this pesticide that would work effectively, cheaply and for a long time after it was applied.

"Yes," Dr. Stark said dangerously, "It kills them through the feet."

Other companies have other chemicals that kill them in other ways. Shell Oil's newest wonder, Aldrin and Dieldrin, have shown themselves to be effectively toxic, too. And the old stand-by, DDT, is still going strong.

But there is the possibility that pesticides and the men who discover them are fighting a losing battle. There is no 100 per cent effective pesticide. And there are always going to be some bugs, stronger than their brothers, who will resist whatever chemical is sent to kill them.

There are reports today that some colonies of houseflies and mosquitoes are no longer bothered by the usually effective pesticides. They have not developed a resistance. They—and their grandparents—were resistant in the beginning.

Is it possible that with new toxic chemicals being developed, science is helping the laws of natural selection, killing off the weak insects and leaving only superbugs?

"It is possible," Dr. Stark said dangerously.

The Pacific Ocean has an area of 63,985,000 square miles, more than twice the Atlantic's 31,529,000 square-mile area.

Nagy is Ousted As Premier of Red Hungary

BUDAPEST, Hungary (P)—Ailing Imre Nagy was dismissed as premier of Communist Hungary today and succeeded by Andras Hegedues, former agriculture minister and first deputy premier.

Nagy's ouster was announced formally to the Hungarian Parliament, meeting in extraordinary session, by President Istvan Dobi.

Hegedues then was named premier by unanimous vote of the House.

Nagy, who has been ill since early winter with coronary thrombosis, was not present at the session.

Dobi told the House that Nagy had carried out his duties as premier in an inefficient manner.

In addition to losing his post as premier, Nagy also was expelled from all Communist Party functions including membership in the Politburo and Central Committee.

Joseph Mekis, Hungarian trade union leader, was named deputy premier.

Both Mekis and Hegedues are about 40 years old.

Take Care of Your Temperamental Feet

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—If you have "beat feet," it's probably your own fault.

At least, that's the opinion of Minnesota doctors who reported in a state medical association bulletin that the feet take abuse from other parts of the body have to take.

First, feet are not necessarily a "foot long." They stretch during the day, becoming longer in the evening than they were in the morning. They are also longer when you walk on them than when you sit down. And they swell when they're hot.

The doctors said shoes should be purchased with an eye to this process of lengthening and swelling, and that alternating pairs of shoes also is a good idea.

Cramming feet into shoes that don't fit, the bulletin warned, invites corns, bunions, hammer-toes, fallen arches and flat feet. And, what's worse, a disposition to match.

To prevent freezing of concrete during winter construction of tall industrial chimneys, M. W. Kellogg Co. wraps the whole job in king-sized electric blankets.

DEATH OF A LEGEND

By WILL HENRY

Copyright 1954 by Will Henry. Used by arrangement with Random House, Inc. Distributed by NEA Service.

It was May 27, 1856. As far as the eye might reach across the coiling creeks and loamy bottomlands of Old Missouri, spring lay everywhere upon the land. Everywhere, perhaps, save in the hearts and minds of the two small boys lingering in the warming dust of Centerville's Pleasant Grove school yard.

The elder of the boys, a square-shouldered lad of 13, spat uneasily into the dirt. "Dingus," he said to his companion, "what you reckon on has happened. 'Bud' I bet he's taken another hiding from Old Colonel."

The smaller boy, clearly his brother, did not answer at once. He was no more than eight years old, and poorly grown for that age. His pale blue eyes appeared weak and watery and he blinked them with a nervous constancy bordering on affliction. His voice was thin and quick as the blink of his strange eyes.

"Bud show up," was all he said.

"Well, supposing he don't?" challenged the other. "You meaning to go on through with it, anyway?"

Dingus looked at him. "Ma wants that nagged back, and we know where he is," he said. He said it as if it was the last word on the subject. The older boy, impressed, was not quite convinced.

"Uncle Eben's no good anyhow you look at him," he objected. "He ain't worth a mouthful of ashes and you know it."

"You losing your sand, Buck?" There was a touch of impulsive anger in the smaller boy's question. Surprisingly, the older lad deferred to it.

"No, Dingus. It's just that them thieving Jayhawkers is sort of worked up right now, what with old John Brown having pulled off that raid only the other day, and all. Maybe we'd ought to wait."

"We done waited three days now!" snapped Dingus.

Buck grimaced unhappily, tried from another direction. "Ma will hide you, certain, when she learns you swiped the gun again."

Dingus blinked rapidly. "She ain't going to learn!" His small hand tightened on the butt of the big revolver protruding from his frayed waistband. "Well, anyways, yonder comes Bud."

Bud was outwardly cut from a different bolt of cloth than either of his two friends. He was a tall boy, a head taller than Buck though a full year younger. Where the adolescent youth will generally be a gawky caricature of the man to come, Bud was already peculiarly handsome. He walked liked a young lion—large of bone, big of paw, loose of joint and still, to be sure, a little awkward in his growing strength. But conscious, withal, of that strength and managing instinctively to move and speak with impressive control of it.

He came up to Buck and Dingus now, grinning broadly. "Let's cut," he greeted them.

There was little in their appearances or attitudes to suggest the desperate nature of their mission. The fact remained that three small boys, accompanied only by a rusted revolver, were intending to swim the Big Muddy in spring flood, cross into enemy Kansas and free a Negro field hand liberated but 72 hours earlier in the opening slave raid of Old Missouri's "dark and bloody" Border War.

Dingus hitched up his gaiters, spat into the dust of Old Sam's front yard. As he started for the front stoop his whistle and the willow switch he had picked up en route were going full blast.

When his reaching foot struck the first plank of the weathered stoop, his high-pitched, "Hello, in there! Anybody at home?" sang out with innocence and purity.

Out back by the smokehouse, the Redbone hound snarled, snored, pulled his head up out of the dust, cleared the crust of flies from around his nostrils with a suspicious "whoof!" Presently, he got up, stretched, yawned, trotted around the house.

On the front stoop Dingus waited, hearing the approach of the hound and moving inside the house. Shortly, Sam Pettis came out. He listened to Dingus's polite "Please, sir, can I have a drink of your well?"

"Old Hickory won't bother you none," said Pettis. "He ain't got but four teeth left in his head, is half blind and can't hear a shotgun six feet away. Only thing he's got left that's any account is his nose."

"Oh, thank you, Mr. I sure am beholden to you, sir. Pettis!" Old Sam Pettis's eyes narrowed. "How come you know my name, boy?"

He moved toward Dingus with the question, what was supposed to be a fetching smile. Dingus was not in the market for any fetching smiles. He backed away a bit faster than somewhat. Then, just as the old man was reaching for him, a saving, ear-splitting noise came ripping into the quiet from the direction of the forgotten smokehouse.

"What was that?" roared Old Sam.

Dingus could have named the noise for him. But he didn't bother. As the old man ran past him to get a clear view of the back yard, he was saving all his breath for a run and jump over the front picket fence.

For what the fiery old Kansas abolitionist was glaring at was the bare-footed flight across his young cornfield of a re-liberated Missouri slave and two Clay County farm boys. Not to mention an old revolver which was hanging at the heels of the terrified Negro.

Dingus, circling far east of the cornfield, saw the old man and the hound move across the mowed rows of the corn patch. He saw, too, the bounce of the May sun off the twin barrels of the 12-gauge. And heard, as well, the bawling notes of the dog's voice.

He himself could cut and drift. The hound was not running his track. But that was not the plan, and when Dingus made a plan, nobody, not him nor anybody else, foiled around with that plan. He had said they would join back up at the south north of Old Pettis's place, and that is what they would do.

He found them waiting for him. And even as they talked, the bell of the old Redbone drew nearer and nearer.

"Now what are we going to do, Ding?" It was Bud doing the asking. "We wasn't stick here and we wasn't cut and run. Ebe's turn his cussed ankle and can't do no more than limp along."

Bud wasn't frightened, nor flustered. But Buck, chiming anxiously in, was both.

Dingus shifted his glance, including Bud in the level cold of the look. "We ain't got a blessed thing to fret about excepting that old hound. He's a quarter mile up on Old Pettis. We'll just leave him."

U. S. to Finance Expansion of Japanese Arms

TOKYO (AP)—The United States has agreed to foot the bill for expanding the Japanese armed forces this year, it was officially disclosed today.

Major U. S. concessions in Japan's threatened standstill in Japanese rearmament which would have seriously affected U. S. defense planning in the Far East.

The concessions, ordered by Washington, were frankly designed to help the new conservative government of Prime Minister Ichiro Hatoyama, which lacks a parliamentary majority, stay in office while Japan rearms.

Both Japanese and American officials disclosed that agreement was reached after two months of negotiations that:

1. Japan will increase its defense agency budget by $34,700,000 to a total of 240 million dollars. This will permit increasing the army by 20,000 men, the navy by 5,000 men and two destroyer-escorts and the air force by 6,000 men and two F86 squadrons, plus related procurement and development programs.

2. Japan will decrease its contributions to the defense of U. S. defense forces based here to insure Japan's security by 42 million dollars below last year. In effect the United States thus gives Japan that amount more this year for its defense effort.

3. Japan will use this saving to pay for the defense agency's increase and for improving air fields and other facilities used either by U. S. forces or jointly.

89-Year-Old Man Confirmed Hitchhiker

ROCHESTER, N. Y. (AP)—Dignified Edward B. Griffin, 89, hitchhikes to keep active and remain independent.

For the former mail carrier runs out of stamps, or feels the urge to visit his kin, or just gets restless, he goes out on the highway and waves his thumb.

Few motorists pass him by, particularly women drivers. Many who normally would never pick up a hitchhiker find it difficult to pass up the dignified gentleman. One woman, met on the highway, now takes him to church every Sunday.

Griffin's longest jaunt by thumb was to southern Minnesota when he was a mere stripling in his 70's.

The old gentleman says he hitchhikes to save money, to be independent (no buses pass his home) and because he likes to.

"I may be out to pasture," he said, "but there are no fences around it yet."
